92	“As an ardent lover of art and music, this exhibition title filled me with excitement to portray the link between art and music, and how culture and genre influence both. My paintings are en plein air and in this exhibition the genre of still life seized my thoughts of how to portray the iconic band “Wet Wet Wet!”

107	My work reflects what I feel and see in the scapes of South Australia. I explore the dramatic, but sometimes subtle contrasts in the tonal layers of earthenware clay bodies – searching for the shadows and movement that white on white can create as well as the interplay of different clay types and colours moulded into wheel thrown forms. I often use sgraffito and other carving techniques to emphasise movement, depth and detail; and enjoy the imperfections that can be created from the heating and cooling in firing processes that reflect the same. Themes of nurture, nature, native, local, home and familiarity are associated with my work, with audiences often commenting: “that reminds me of ...” My vision is to utilise clays from local areas in South Australia to create forms made from the earth from which it came.

61	Have you ever noticed the abundance of place names in South Australia that feature colours? I find it quite beautiful, and it has inspired me to create a new jewellery collection. The necklaces on display at this exhibition are the initial pieces from my "Coloured, SA" series. My daughter has compiled an extensive list of such "coloured" places, so this project will likely take several years to complete
